

$21-MILLION HOTEL PROJECT

Plans unveiled for Cotton Mill on Madison’s riverfront

A more than $21 million investment to transform the Cotton Mill property on Madison’s riverfront into an 80-room boutique hotel was announced this morning.

The plans are being undertaken by Riverton LLC, in collaboration with the City of Madison and the Indiana Economic Development Corporation.

The plans, with an initial commitment from Marriott, feature a conference center, guest amenities, restaurant and enhanced outdoor spaces with views of the Ohio River. Construction is expected to be complete in summer 2020. Renderings are to the right and below. The complete news release is below:

MADISON, Ind. (Jan. 23, 2019) – Riverton LLC, in collaboration with the City of Madison and the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC), announced plans today to rehabilitate the historic Eagle Cotton Mill building along the Ohio River in downtown Madison. The redevelopment, which will transform the vacant industrial site into a boutique hotel and conference center, will enhance the city’s tourism industry and support the community’s efforts to attract investment and talent to southeast Indiana.

“The Eagle Cotton Mill was once an important economic driver and source of civic pride for the community. This significant redevelopment will breathe life back into one of southeast Indiana’s most historic buildings, enhancing Madison’s tourism industry and supporting the growth and vibrancy of the downtown area,” Gov. Eric J. Holcomb said. “Through quality of place projects like the Eagle Cotton Mill, Indiana will continue to help transform our communities into vibrant destinations where people choose to live, work and play.”

The Eagle Cotton Mill, a three-story, 104,000-square-foot building at 108 St. Michael’s Avenue in Madison, was built in 1884 and served as a twine and fabric factory that shipped goods along the Ohio River until its closing in 1937. The building was later purchased by Madison-based Meese Inc., which occupied the property until the early 1980s, but has since remained vacant. The Eagle Cotton Mill is located in the Madison National Historic Landmark District, which is the largest contiguous district in the U.S., and was included on Indiana Landmarks’ 10 Most Endangered Historic Structures list.

“When my wife and I moved to Madison, one of the first things that caught our eyes was the Eagle Cotton Mill,” said Ron Bateman, president and founder of Riverton. “Together with former business partners, we began to explore preservation options and ways to bring this property back to life. Now, with the help of the IEDC, Mayor Welch, Dora Hospitality and countless others, we have solidified plans to bring a new hotel to the Eagle Cotton Mill. Our goal is to save this remarkable building and use it to support tourism in Madison’s historic district.”

Riverton plans to invest more than $21 million to transform the Eagle Cotton Mill building into a new 80-room boutique hotel, with an initial commitment from Marriott Hotels. Additionally, the repurposed property will feature a conference center, guest amenities, restaurant and enhanced outdoor spaces with views of the Ohio River. With construction expected to be complete in summer 2020, this project highlights a continued investment in the city’s historic district, helping increase economic activity and create a better quality of place in the community.

“This stellar project is a game changer for the Madison community and will bring to life a project that our community has imagined for almost 30 years,” said Madison Mayor Damon Welch. “I appreciate the IEDC, the Riverton team, Matt Wirth at the Jefferson County Industrial Development Corporation, and my staff – especially Nicole Schell and Andrew Forrester – who have worked relentlessly to bring us to this point. I’m eager to work with the Madison City Council, Redevelopment Commission and Economic Development Commission as we move forward on this exciting project.”

Madison is a popular tourism destination that features historic sites such as the Eagle Cotton Mill, Shrewsbury Windle Home, Lanier Mansion State Historic Site and Clifty Falls State Park, and five major festivals including the Madison Regatta hydroplane boat race, which is held annually during the Fourth of July.

The IEDC offered Riverton up to $4.75 million in conditional tax credits from the Industrial Recovery Tax Credit (DINO) program, which provides an incentive to invest in former industrial sites and improve quality of place in Indiana communities. This is the first DINO project in Madison and the oldest building to be redeveloped under the program. The City of Madison will consider additional incentives in support of the project over the coming weeks.

Original Cotton Mill completed in 1884

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to The Madison Courier

In 2013, Indiana Landmarks added the Eagle Cotton Mill to its annual list of the 10 Most Endangered Landmarks.

Indiana Landmarks has issued the list since 1991 to call attention to the needs of historically significant properties.

Indiana Landmarks President Marsh Davis said all of the sites that year had potential for retalization, but acknowledged they can be a challenge to save. The group hopes that including them on its most endangered list will bring attention to their plight and help “find solutions that will ensure their preservation,” he said.

The building at St. Michael’s Avenue and Vaughn Drive, made its first appearance on the list in 2013.

When builders Robert H. Rankin and James White announced plans in the 1800s to build a cotton mill facing the Ohio River east of downtown, they said it would take three months to build. Instead it took six months to construct the huge building at what is now Vaughn Drive and St. Michael’s Avenue.

Completed in 1884, it is 247 feet long, 74 feet wide, four stories, with the brick walls 25 inches thick. The first three floors have 12-foot ceilings and the top floor has a 14-foot ceiling.

Rankin and White had a purpose for building the cotton mill: When the building was finished, money that had been raised through subscriptions in Madison was used to buy the equipment of the Eagle and Banner Mills in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and move it to Madison.

The Eagle Cotton Mill failed financially in 1890, according to the 1971 Historical American Buildings

Duke Energy to close Edwardsport ‘historic ash deposits’

By KRISTEN INMAN
Vincennes Sun-Commercial

EDWARDSPORT — The coal ash deposits at Duke Energy’s power plant here will soon be no more.

While utility companies across the nation prepare to close or clean up their coal ash ponds, Duke is taking voluntary steps to dispose of its dry ash deposits left behind after the closure of the old plant in 2011.

Duke spokeswoman Angeline Protegere says the utility will submit a closure plan to the Indiana Department of Environmental Management by September for the remaining coal ash deposits at the site.

During the spring of 2015, she explained, Duke Energy voluntarily disclosed the existence of these “historic ash piles” at Edwardsport to IDEM’s Office of Land Quality in order to comply with state regulations of ash deposit sites.

It is unknown, at this point, when that cleanup will get underway.

When a power plant burns coal to produce energy, it creates a powdery byproduct known as “coal ash.” That ash often has been stored in massive, unlined pits commonly called ash ponds.

In 2014, the Environmental Protection Agency passed guidelines on the safe disposal of coal ash so the contaminants within — mercury, cadmium and arsenic — cannot leach into the air, groundwater or drinking water.

The original 160-megawatt coal-fired plant led to ash being stored in four locations from 1918 to 1974.

The coal ash was removed and transported to a landfill at another power plant. One of the basins was lined and repurposed for process water.

The plant was retired in 2011, demolished in 2012, and replaced with the current 618-megawatt integrated gasification combined cycle (IGCC) plant. The new plant fired up in June 2013.

As such, it is not subject to federal coal combustion residuals rules.

Those basins of murky water, visible from the highway, contain water used for operations in the plant as well as stormwater. The water for those purposes is supplied from collector wells.

Duke Energy has not finalized estimates of the size of the dry coal ash deposits at the Edwardsport plant, another thing that will be needed for their closure plan.

Groundwater sampling has been conducted twice a year since 2016 and the area is inspected each month — revealing, she explained, no off-site groundwater impacts from the ash.

This past December, interest in coal ash ponds was renewed after disclosures from utility companies across the nation revealed a widespread problem of groundwater contamination on behalf of coal-firing plants.

According to Indystar, Indiana leads the nation in coal ash ponds with around 85 pits, holding “enough (coal) ash to bury Lucas Oil Stadium under 800 feet of toxic ash.”

IDEM said it doesn’t have the power to specifically instruct utilities on how to close their ponds, but it has made it clear that the utilities must prevent liquids from mixing with the coal ash and releasing toxic chemicals into water.

The Hoosier Environmental Council, the state’s leading environmental watchdog group, said leaving the ash in place will allow for pollution to continue.

President Barack Obama’s administration implemented a law in 2015 that instructed utilities to close ash ponds that are a known source of contamination or are within 5 feet of groundwater by April 2019.

President Donald Trump’s administration amended the rule to extend the deadline for some coal plant owners to October 2020.

Kentucky sees hemp poised for another growth spurt

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Freed from the list of federally banned substances, hemp is about to have another growth spurt in Kentucky.

The state’s agriculture commissioner said Tuesday that his department has approved 1,035 applications to produce up to 42,086 acres of industrial hemp in 2019. Last year, 210 licensed growers planted more than 6,700 acres when the low-THC version of the cannabis plant was operating under a limited reprieve.

The new surge offers more proof that Kentucky is poised to become a national leader in hemp production, Agriculture Commissioner Ryan Quarles said.

Hemp became a legitimate agricultural crop late last year when a provision in the federal farm bill removed the plant from the list of federally controlled substances. For decades, the leafy plant was banned due to its family ties to marijuana. But hemp, unlike its cousin, has a negligible amount of THC, the psychoactive compound that gives marijuana users a high.

Hemp gained mainstream support in Kentucky several years ago and the state’s most prominent political leader — Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell — led the legalization push in Congress last year.

Legalization means hemp farmers will be able to buy crop insurance, apply for loans and grants and write off their business expenses on their taxes like any other farmer.

States have been given primary regulatory oversight of hemp. In Kentucky, the state Department of Agriculture said Tuesday it has approved 40 new applications from businesses wanting to process hemp.

That’s on top of the 69 existing processors who are renewing their licenses for 2019, it said.

To grow or process hemp in Kentucky, farmers and businesses must be licensed by the state agriculture department.

License holders must pass background checks and consent to inspections by law enforcement or state agriculture officials of any premises where hemp is grown, handled, stored or processed.

Authorities rescue 2 from log pile in icy Indy-area creek

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — Authorities rescued two young people who were stranded on a pile of logs after falling into an in an icy creek at a park. The Indianapolis Fire Department responded Monday to Southeastway Park and found a 17-year-old male and an 18-year-old male on the log pile in Buck Creek about 21 feet from land. They used a ladder to bridge the gap and took life vests and blankets. The young people were returned to land and checked out at the scene. The department says the two and another 18-year-old male were hiking when the two attempted to cross the creek on icy logs. A hiker who happened upon them about 30 minutes later called 911.

Clark’s sister, Lucy, will be in the exhibit gallery from noon to 4 p.m. both days. Cake and refreshments will be served.

Flood-prone land to be amphitheater

FRANKLIN — Plans to turn a stretch of flood-prone land into a greenspace that will include an amphitheater and room for festivals are moving ahead. Franklin’s redevelopment commission reached an agreement last week to spend $850,000 to buy a key piece of land and relocate two businesses for the project. The Daily Journal reports that the planned 14-acre greenspace along Young’s Creek will host festivals and events and also absorb the floodwaters in the city about 20 miles south of Indianapolis. Franklin has made three other land purchases along the creek since flooding in 2017 again damaged businesses in the flood-prone area. Mayor Steve Barnett says the greenspace and its amphitheater will change the look of downtown Franklin, spur investment and create a new public gathering space.

Regulators sign off on dairy farm

LAKE VILLAGE — Regulators have granted a key permit for an organic dairy farm that could become home to more than 4,000 cows in Newton County. Natural Prairie Dairy says its cows will graze on alfalfa and grass that hasn’t been treated with synthetic herbicides or pesticides. Critics, including the Hoosier Environmental Council, fear the northwestern Indiana farm could harm wells and reduce property values. The site is near The Nature Conservancy’s Kankakee Sands natural area. But the Indiana Department of Environmental Management says Natural Prairie has presented a satisfactory plan to deal with manure, which will be used as fertilizer. Kim Ferraro, a lawyer with the Hoosier Environmental Council, told The (Northwest Indiana) Times that the state’s decision is “irresponsible.” Dairy Manager Will De Jong says planning has improved, based on “listening to our neighbors.”

Homes used by serial killer to be demolished

GARY — Five abandoned homes where a former Marine strangled and hid the bodies of seven women will be demolished and replaced by memorials to the victims. Gary Mayor Karen Freeman-Wilson said razing the homes should provide “solace” for the families of Darren Vann’s victims, The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported. She said the city will work with the victims’ families to create memorial gardens at the properties. Authorities say Vann preyed on women in an area of Gary known as a hangout for prostitutes and drug users. Vann was arrested in 2014 and pleaded guilty last year to killing Teaira Bates, 28; Afrikka Hardy, 19; Anith Jones, 35; Tracy Martin, 41; Kristine Williams, 36; Sonya Billingsley, 53; and Tanya Gatlin, 27. Vann is serving life in prison without parole after accepting a plea deal that spared him the death sentence.

Cameron files to run for attorney general

FRANKFORT — A former University of Louisville football player and lawyer for U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell has filed to run for attorney general in Kentucky, setting up a primary with a powerful state senator. Daniel Cameron filed paperwork Tuesday to seek the Republican nomination for attorney general. He is the second Republican to enter the race, joining Whitney Westerdahl, a former prosecutor who is now chairman of the state Senate Judiciary Committee. No Democrats have filed for the seat yet, but former state House Speaker Greg Stumbo has said he plans to run. Democrat Attorney General Andy Beshear is not seeking re-election and is running for governor instead.

Nominations open for teacher awards

FRANKFORT — Education officials say nominations can now be offered for the 2020 Kentucky Teacher Awards. The deadline for nominations is Feb. 15. Any full-time public schoolteacher in the state with at least three years of experience is eligible. Teachers may be nominated by students, parents, teaching peers, principals, superintendents or anyone from the community who has an interest in honoring an outstanding educator. All nominated teachers are required to complete a formal application, which must be submitted by March 8. The winners will be announced in the spring. The awards’ sponsors are the Kentucky Department of Education and Valvoline Inc. Officials say nominations may be submitted electronically by visiting the 2020 Kentucky Teacher of the Year website at kentuckytoy.com

Look for ways to divvy up work. It's important not to take on too much if you want to get ahead. Helping others is a kind gesture, but it shouldn't come at your own expense. This is your year to advance, so choose how you spend your time wisely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Deal with institutions and government agencies carefully. There will be no room for error if you want to avoid a loss. Make sure your finances, medical records and contracts are in order.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Indulgent behavior will lead to emotional problems. Protect your heart and important relationships. Walk away from people offering empty promises. Do what's right.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Challenge yourself physically and get rid of some of the anxiety you are feeling. It's best to calm down before you complain or criticize. Keep the peace and show compassion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Take care of your responsibilities without complaint. If you let the actions of others get to you, it will lead to discord. Focus on getting ahead, not on causing trouble.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You may want to initiate a change, but make sure it's what you really want. You must be willing to do some physical work. Your reputation is at

A boyfriend who lies about partner abuse

Dear Annie: Recently, you published a letter from someone whose good friend was being abused by a girlfriend physically, verbally and financially. I agree with your advice to the letter writer to keep in contact with her abused friend.

My issue is this: My boyfriend is telling his mother that I am abusing him, and I am not; he is the mean one. I am in the process of getting out of the relationship. We both have lots of ties — homes, two businesses and more. Because of what we have on our shared plate, it is easier to say that I should get out ASAP, but it's harder to actually do it. We are in separate rooms and living areas of our large home, which helps during the breakup process.

Anyway, my boyfriend is not telling his mother that he is the abusive one. He tells her that I call him names. He doesn't tell her my anger comes from how he acts like a bully. He busts doors all over our beautiful home, for one. Also, he recently spat out a mouthful of carrots all over the table while we were out for dinner because he was mad! I was embarrassed that he did that in public. I finished my meal and left. He since has angrily spit food all over the place twice. He calls me really foul and demeaning names — saying I'm a miserable you-know-what. I tell him anyone in a relationship with him would be miserable.

Would it be OK to spill the beans to his family about what he is really doing and has done? Or would it be best to just walk away when I am finally organized in a smart enough way to leave? I really want to spill the beans to his mother. — Apprehensive

Dear Apprehensive: Spilling the beans wouldn't get you anything except more of a mess. Continue preparing yourself to make an exit. See-those who put demands on you accountable. Romance is encouraged.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Get your responsibilities out of the way before someone complains, and move on to the things you enjoy doing. Get together with someone who shares your enthusiasm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Don't let an emotional matter sidetrack you. Focus on fitness, health and moderation. Take charge of your life, and walk away from people trying to tell you what to do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Look over your personal documents and finances, and consider how well you take care of your emotional and physical health. If change is required, put a plan in place.

STUDY SUGGESTS FULL-FAT MILK MAY NOT BE BAD FOR YOUR HEART

Dear Doctor: I just read that full-fat milk isn't actually bad for you, and that it may even reduce the risk of stroke. That's just so different from what we've been taught. What's the deal?

Dear Reader: The results of emerging research in recent years suggest that some of what had been taken as fact regarding the adverse health effects of a range of dietary fats was incorrect. Among the tenets recently called into question is the theory that full-fat dairy products have a direct link to heart disease and stroke.

To understand how deeply this idea has taken root, just take a look at the cheese and dairy cases of your local grocery store. Offerings of non-fat and low-fat milk far outnumber those of whole milk. Ditto for the cream and half-and-half section, which is often dwarfed by a wide selection of fat-free creamlike products. The de-fatting trend has transferred to the cheese and ice cream aisles as well. It's fascinating to read ingredient labels and see the culinary (and chemical) gymnastics used to arrive at some of these low-fat products.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death for both men and women in the United States each year. Small wonder then that the study you're referring to, which disputes the long-held idea that dairy fat raises cardiovascular risk, made such a splash. What added to the collective double-take is that researchers from the Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy at Tufts University in Medford, Massachusetts, went on to report that in some instances, full-fat dairy products may even offer health benefits.

Published last summer in The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, the study contradicts the most recent Dietary Guidelines for Americans. The current guidelines, which are issued by the federal Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, urge Americans to choose dairy products that are low-fat or fat-free.

The study analyzed health data from more than 2,900 women and men aged 65 and older. Researchers began in 1992, with baseline measurements of participants' blood plasma levels of three fatty acids that are contained in dairy products. They followed the study participants for the next 22 years, including periodic rechecks of blood plasma levels. By 2014, a total of 2,428 of the study participants had died. Of those deaths, 833 were attributed to heart disease. However, according to the final analysis of the data, none of the three fatty acids that were the focus of the study were linked to the risk of total mortality. Even more surprising were results that showed participants with higher levels of fatty acids, which suggested higher levels of consumption of whole-fat dairy products, had a 42 percent lower risk of death from stroke.

As the study's authors point out, low-fat dairy products tend to have higher levels of simple sugars, which are now getting a closer look as a factor in cardiovascular disease. It will be interesting to see whether federal dietary guidelines shift as a result of this study, which was funded by the National Institutes of Health.

Rivera HOF's 1st unanimous

NEW YORK (AP) — Mariano Rivera has become baseball's first unanimous Hall of Fame selection, elected along with Roy Halladay, Edgar Martinez and Mike Mussina. Rivera received all 425 votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America announced Tuesday. The quartet will be enshrined in Cooperstown along with Today's Game Era Committee selections Harold Baines and Lee Smith on July 21.

Rivera is baseball's career saves leader with 652. Armed with his signature cut fastball, he won five World Series over 19 seasons with the New York Yankees.

Ken Griffey Jr. held the mark for top percentage at 99.32 when he was on 437 of 440 ballots two years ago.

Halladay, an ace with the Toronto Blue Jays and Philadelphia Phillies, got 85.4 percent and will be the first posthumous inductee since Deacon White in 2013 and Ron Santo in 2012. Halladay died in November 2017 at 40 years old when an airplane he was flying crashed into the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Florida.

Martinez was a .312 hitter over 18 seasons with Seattle. He got 85.4 percent in his 10th and final try on the writers' ballot. He and Baines will join 2014 inductee Frank Thomas as the only Hall of Famers to play the majority of their games at designated hitter. David Ortiz will be eligible in 2022.

Mussina was a steady left-hander for the Yankees and Baltimore Orioles who went 270-153 with 2,813 strikeouts over 18 seasons. He received 76.7 percent.

Barry Bonds and Roger Clemens made gains but again fell short in their seventh time on the ballot. Bonds got 59.1 percent and Clemens 59.5.

Chiefs fire DC Bob Sutton

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Chiefs have fired defensive coordinator Bob Sutton after a second-half collapse in the AFC championship game, including an overtime period in which Kansas City failed to stop the New England Patriots on what turned out to be the only possession.

The Patriots won the game 37-31 to reach their third consecutive Super Bowl.

Chiefs coach Andy Reid announced the firing in a statement Tuesday, one day after he said he was evaluating all aspects of the team. Reid declined to address Sutton specifically.

Sutton had been the defensive coordinator since 2013, when he joined Reid's initial staff in Kansas City. The longtime college and NFL assistant had previously spent more than a decade with the New York Jets, including a stint as defensive coordinator.

Mavs' Doncic fined $10K

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks guard Luka Doncic has been fined $10,000 for kicking the ball into the stands, which led to his ejection from a game against Indiana.

Doncic kicked the ball after a basket by the Pacers late in the third quarter of their 111-99 victory over the Mavericks on Saturday night. The NBA announced the fine Tuesday.

The 19-year-old rookie sensation from Slovenia said he didn't intentionally kick the ball into the stands. The ball ricocheted off the back of the backboard into the first couple of rows of seats. Because Doncic had received a technical earlier in the game, his second technical resulted in the first ejection of his career.

USC lands Sanders' son

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina will have some "Prime Time" on its team next season as the son of NFL Hall of Famer Deion Sanders committed to the Gamecocks on Tuesday night.

Shilo Sanders posted his decision to join the Gamecocks on social media, his video ending with him in a white South Carolina jersey with No. 21 — the number his father made famous during 14 seasons in the NFL.

Shilo Sanders is a 6-foot, 185-pound three-star prospect cornerback from Trinity Christian School in Cedar Hill, Texas, considered an offers from several schools including Georgia, Tennessee and his father's college, Florida State.

"I am so dang proud of the grit and focus my kids showed tonight. We did not fold nor cower under pressure ... We had a different energy about us tonight and it had a huge part to do with our win. I'm just so happy for our kids, because they truly did deserve that win."

down and never let ourselves get completely out of the game. We had a different energy about us tonight and it had a huge part to do with our win. I'm just so happy for our kids, because they truly did deserve that win."

Ralston and Marcum did a little of everything offensively for the Rebels. Each went 4-for-5 from the free-throw line to account for all of Southwestern's attempts. Ralston also hit three of the Rebels' five 3-pointers in the game.

"I can't say enough about Abby and Bella. As a senior and junior, they really took control of the game tonight," Brierly said. "They hit big shots when we needed them, took care of the ball in crucial situations, played their tails off on defense, and kept our team together. I am just so proud of those two and appreciate the hard work they've put in all year long."

Sydney Jaynes, Trinity's 6-foot-2 sophomore center, scored 15 points to lead the Cougars.

Toppers win but Grote's attempt to play with torn ACL ends early Shawe senior guard ends career 57 points shy of school record

When people look back on the final game of Kate Grote's stellar career, they won't remember that the Shawe Memorial star had only three points in the Hilltoppers' 31-26 win over Christian Academy of Indiana.

They'll remember that she tried to play at all.

Two weeks after tearing the ACL and partially tearing the meniscus in her right knee, Grote started for Shawe in the Hilltoppers' home game on Tuesday with the knee wrapped in a heavy brace.

Grote showed flashes of her old self, particularly at the start of the third quarter when she jumped a passing lane, stole a Christian Academy pass and cruised in for an easy layup.

But there were signs that things weren't going to go well. She missed a layup early in the second quarter, got her own rebound and missed that as well, tweaking the injured knee and sending her to the bench in obvious pain.

The end came one possession after her steal and run-out basket. Facing a defender one-on-one, Grote slipped into the old version of herself, faking left then going right. But on that "It just folded. It hurt. This is my last game for sure. I'm so proud of where we are. I'm full-on ready to sit on the bench and cheer for them."

Southwestern, now 8-15 on the season, wrap up the regular season with another road game against another ranked team from Class A, this time No. 6 Jac-Cen-Del on Thursday.

Northwestern hands IU 5th straight loss

By ANDREW SELIGMAN

AP Sports Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — Chris Collins kept imploring Aaron Falzon to be patient and insisted the opportunity would come. This is what Falzon did when he finally got his chance.

Falzon scored a career-high 21 points and matched one with six 3-pointers to lead Northwestern to a 73-66 victory over struggling Indiana on Tuesday night.

Falzon scored 20 points two times during a promising 2015-16 freshman season. Since then, he's been slowed by injuries, even redshirting a year.

He had played just 18 minutes over three games this season. But with Pete Nance sidelined indefinitely because of mononucleosis, Falzon came through in a big way. He nailed 6 of 7 3-pointers, and the Wildcats (12-7, 3-5 Big Ten) handed the Hoosiers (12-7, 3-5) their fifth straight loss.

"It's really, really hard for a young kid like me ... to be patient and wait on your moment," Falzon said. "But you've got to believe it. Every day, I would just come and just shoot and try to work out and get extra workouts in. And hopefully my day would come. Today, it came and I was just ready for the moment."

Dererk Pardon added 17 points for Northwestern. Collins became the third Northwestern coach with 100 wins, and the Wildcats (12-7, 3-5 Big Ten) hung on to hand the Hoosiers (12-7, 3-5) their fifth straight loss.

Juwan Morgan led Indiana with 18 points and 11 rebounds. Star freshman Romeo Langford scored 12 coming off a four-point outing against Purdue last week, and Indiana continued to stumble after winning 12 of their first 14 games.

"It really came down to the 3-point line tonight," coach Archie Miller said. "They did a fantastic job. Aaron Falzon, you have to give him credit. He hadn't been playing much. He's obviously known as a shooter and he got going. One guy changed the game there."

The Hoosiers basically went with a six-man rotation. They didn't have Devonte Green, who was suspended for "not meeting the standards expected of members of the program" on Tuesday. He had been starting lately because Rob Phinisee was working his way back from concussion-like symptoms.

Miller wouldn't say why Green was suspended or how long he will be out.

"Obviously, he's played a role on our team and he's played minutes, but he's not available and we go with what we go with," he said.

FALZON DELIVERS

Falzon, who missed the first 10 games, keyed a 15-4 run at the end of the first half, hitting three 3-pointers as Northwestern grabbed a 28-24 lead. He also had the fans chanting his name after scoring nine in about a two-minute span in the second as the Wildcats bumped the lead from 42-36 lead to 52-38.

"You'd love to play everybody 40 minutes, but that's just not going to be a reality," Collins said. "He and I had conversations. And I just kept telling him, I said, 'Aaron, I know you're frustrated. I know you want to get out there. And I haven't forgotten about you. Just please stay ready.'"

Lady Cubs’ 4-game win streak halted

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

North Harrison girls basketball used a big third-quarter rally to pull away from visiting Madison and snap the Cubs four-game win streak, 64-54, on Tuesday in Ramsey.

The Lady Cubs, who had lost only once in January, stayed close throughout the first two quarters, trailing only 13-12 after the first and 30-27 at halftime.

But North Harrison out-scored Madison 21-11 in the third quarter to open a 13-point lead and then fended off any thoughts of a Cub comeback in the fourth to seal the win.

Paige Young hit four 3-pointers and scored a career-high 24 points and added four assists and five steals to lead Madison while Jade Nutley had 21 points and eight rebounds. However, the Cubs shot just 37 percent (19-of-52) from the floor.

Wofford-bound Lilly Hatton scored 22 points and had 10 rebounds on her senior night to lead North Harrison, which shot 64 percent (27-of-42) from the floor. Ali Saunders added 16 points and six assists while Chloe Jacobi had 15 points and eight rebounds for the Lady-Cats.

Madison (9-13) wrap up the regular season at Class A No. 10 Trinity Lutheran on Thursday and will open the Class 3A Sectional at Lawrenceburg against Franklin County on Wednesday, Jan. 30.

CAM falls 43-36 after 5 straight wins

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Christian Academy boys basketball saw its five-game win streak snapped in a 43-36 loss to Assumption Academy (Ky.) at home on Tuesday.

The Defenders played from behind nearly the entire way, trailing 14-7 after the first quarter and 19-14 at halftime. The second half was contested nearly even with Assumption hanging on to pull out the win.

“The Horsemen controlled the outside shooting with five 3-pointers in the first half and the Defenders just couldn’t get over the hump,” said coach Adrian Carter.

Trent Haggard scored 12 points to lead Christian Academy while David Kummer scored nine.

Matt Pfeiffer scored 17 points, Gerard Kunkel had 11 points and Dominic Field had 10 for Assumption.

Christian Academy (10-9) plays Columbus HomeSchool on Friday at Foundation For Youth at 405 Hope Ave., Columbus.

REGIONAL COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Gueye's putback beats Notre Dame 63-61

ATLANTA (AP) — Abdoulaye Gueye had a huge putback with 52 seconds left. Jose Alvarado hit two clutch free throws and Georgia Tech held off Notre Dame for a 63-61 victory in the Atlantic Coast Conference on Tuesday night.

Alvarado and James Banks III scored 16 points apiece to lead the Yellow Jackets (11-8, 3-3), who snapped a two-game losing streak.

Notre Dame (11-8, 1-5) lost for its third in a row despite another big game from John Mooney, who had 22 points and 14 rebounds.

Mooney made a meaningless shot at the buzzer, ripping at his shirt in frustration as the Fighting Irish dropped another one in the ACC, falling to last all by themselves in the conference standings.

Notre Dame hosts No. 3 Virginia Saturday (TV: Live on CBS at 1 p.m.).

Nova beats Butler for 7th straight win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eric Paschall scored 23 points, Phil Booth added 17 and No. 18 Villanova made 12 3-pointers to pull away from Butler 80-72 on Tuesday night.

The Wildcats (15-4, 6-0 Big East) have won seven straight since losing to Kansas on Dec. 15.

Aaron Thompson had 15 points for Butler (12-8, 3-4), which had won its previous two games. Sean McDermott had 14 points and seven rebounds while Kamar Baldwin and Jordan Tucker each finished with 11 points.

While the Big East’s two best defensive teams lived up to the billing, each team’s shooters were even better — especially during a first half when the teams combined to shoot 55 percent from the field and made 13 3s.

After losing four of five, the Bulldogs showed some fight. They won back-to-back games and though they lost their second home game this season, Butler challenged Villanova most of the night.

Butler visits Creighton Friday (TV: Live on FS1 at 8:30 p.m.).

Ball State falls 71-65 to Miami-Ohio

MUNCIE (AP) — Bam Bowman scored 16 points, Darrian Ringo added 15 with six assists and five steals, and Miami (OH) held off Ball State 71-65 on Tuesday night after the Cardinals hit 1 of 11 from 3-point range.

Dalonte Brown made three 3s and scored 13 points and Nike Sibande added 11 points for the Redhawks (10-9, 2-4 Mid-American Conference), who hit 9 of 24 3-pointers and shot 51 percent but were outrebounded 36-27.

K.J. Walton scored 16 points, Tahjai Teague added 15 with nine rebounds, three steals and three blocks, and Tayler Persons and Trey Moses had 11 apiece for Ball State (11-8, 2-4), which shot 41 percent.

No. 8 Kentucky beats No. 22 Miss St. 76-55

By GARY B. GRAVES
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky’s defense wasn’t perfect against Mississippi State, just quick enough to disrupt the No. 22 Bulldogs’ rhythm and cause its worst offensive performance this season.

The No. 8 Wildcats now aim to keep it going after clearing the second of three big challenges.

PJ Washington scored 21 points, including a big 3-pointer down the stretch, Tyler Herro added 18 and Kentucky pulled away from Mississippi State 76-55 on Tuesday night for its fifth consecutive victory.

The Wildcats (15-3, 5-1 Southeastern Conference) also emerged with a lot to like in beating their second of three ranked opponents before hosting No. 9 Kansas on Saturday.

They led for all but the early minutes, but had to survive some rough stretches that allowed the Bulldogs (14-4, 2-3) to get within 41-39 with 13:39 remaining. Kentucky answered with scoring 18 of the next 25 points over the next 6:50, helped by Herro’s three free throws and consecutive 3s by Immanuel Quickley and Washington, for a double-digit advantage it maintained.

Defense helped as Kentucky held the Bulldogs (14-4, 2-3) to season lows in points and shooting (31 percent) behind timely plays that swung the game. The biggest was EJ Montgomery’s out-of-nowhere swat of Quinnndary Weatherspoon’s layup attempt, leading to Nick Richard’s dunk that snuffed MSU’s last chance to close the gap. His block was among eight by the Wildcats.

“It was pretty important,” Herro said of the play. “EJ made a big block that kind of helped us and sparked us and we kind of took off from there.”

Kentucky on the other hand shot 44 percent but 8 of 16 from long range.

Washington was 9 of 15 from the field with three 3s for his first 20-point game in over a month. He also grabbed six rebounds and matched a season high with four blocks.

“I felt like I was just hitting shots tonight,” Washington said. “They was just falling. I could’ve done a lot more on the defensive end and rebound more. There’s always room for improvement.”

Herro made all three from long range and all five free throws to follow his 20-point performance at Auburn. Reid Travis grabbed 12 rebounds and Ashton Hagans a career-high nine assists as the Wildcats won the glass 43-36 and won the second of three consecutive Top-25 matchups.

Kentucky also succeeded in holding MSU’s potent perimeter game to just 3 of 20 from behind the arc after entering the contest second in the SEC at 38 percent.

Quinnndary Weatherspoon had 19 points and Tyson Carter 11 for the Bulldogs, who made just 19 of 61 from the field (31 percent) in their first game against a ranked foe this season.

“We were rushed offensively tonight,” Bulldogs coach Ben Howland said. “I think they did a good job of speeding us up and getting us playing faster and not really controlled enough offensively.”

POLL IMPLICATIONS

The Wildcats should remain in the Top 10 after clearing the first of two ranked opponents this week. The Bulldogs will need to beat Auburn on Saturday to remain ranked.

UP NEXT

Kentucky hosts No. 9 Kansas on Saturday — the Wildcats’ third straight AP Top 25 opponent, in the SEC/Big 12 Challenge (TV: Live on ESPN at 6 p.m.).

•Indiana

to go following a 3 by Ryan Taylor. Indiana then went on a 13-1 run, capped by Langford’s 3-point play on a fallaway jumper to cut it to 56-53.

A layup by Pardon and two free throws each by Anthony Gaines and Vic Law got the lead up to nine with 5:28 left.

BIG PICTURE

The Hoosiers struggled from the field, shooting 38.3 percent overall and 4 of 21 on 3-pointers.

Falzon had the right touch from the outside, and the Wildcats gave their postseason hopes a boost.

UP NEXT

Indiana Hosts No. 5 Michigan on Friday (TV: Live on FS1 at 6:30 p.m.).

second move her knee gave out and she crumpled to the floor. After being helped to the basket, she slowly took off the brace and accepted her fate. “It just folded. It hurt,” Grote said, managing a faint smile. “This is my last game for sure. I’m so proud of where we are. I’m full-on ready to sit on the bench and cheer for them.” With Grote unable to help on the sidelines, the rest of the Hilltoppers soldiered on and,

Gray is well aware of Reds’ history, ballpark

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — Sonny Gray knows what he’s getting into even before he arrives in Cincinnati. His father tried out for the Reds and failed to make the cut, but remained a huge fan. Gray attended his first major league game at Great American Ball Park, and he knows about the town’s affinity for a unique style of chili.

The starter also knows that Great American is akin to Yankee Stadium, where he struggled mightily last season. Gray agreed to a trade from the Yankees anyway, along with a $38 million, four-year contract adding $30.5 million in guaranteed money from 2020-22.

Gray

The deal announced Monday includes a $12 million club option for 2023 that could increase the value to $50 million for five seasons and has additional performance bonuses for innings and escalators. “The relationships just felt right,” Gray said during a conference call Tuesday. The Reds made their third offseason move to upgrade their troublesome rotation, sending infield prospect Shed Long and a high pick in this year’s amateur draft to the Yankees in exchange for the 29-year-old Gray and left-hander Reiver Sanmartin. New York then sent Long to Seattle for 21-year-old outfielder Josh Stowers.

New York got Gray from Oakland in July 2017, but that relationship didn’t work out. He was dropped from the rotation in August and finished 15-16 with a 4.52 ERA overall for New York.

Gray had a 3.17 ERA on the road last season and 6.98 at Yankee Stadium. He’s moving to a ballpark that has been among the majors’ most homer-friendly every season since it opened in 2003.

“That never factored in to my decision,” Gray said. “I’m not huge into that type of stuff. I think if you can pitch and you’re comfortable pitching somewhere, honestly you can go out and get the job done, for sure.”

He can’t explain why his results were so much worse at Yankee Stadium.

“I’m not going to lie: I felt comfortable taking the mound,” he said. “I felt good. It just didn’t work out. I don’t know. I don’t have an answer for that.”

He felt comfortable joining the Reds in part because he’ll be reunited with pitching coach Derek Johnson, who was his coach at Vanderbilt. Plus, Gray was encouraged that the Reds led by junior Grace McAllister, mounted a fourth-quarter comeback. Trailing 20-18 to start the final frame, Shawe got buckets from McAllister and Lina Leatherman to push ahead 22-20 before a huge 3-pointer from Phoebe Grote with 3:55 to go put the Hilltoppers ahead 25-22. McAllister added two free throws on separate trips to put Shawe on top 27-22 but Christian’s Ann Lopez knocked down a trey to get the Warriors are trying to resurrect themselves from four straight seasons with at least 94 losses. They’ve also traded for starters Tanner Roark and Alex Wood, giving their rotation an overhaul. The Reds spent the last three seasons relying on young starters to emerge, but most of them struggled mightily. The three newcomers will join Anthony DeSclafani as a foursome with significant major league experience. “It’s just some guys who have been around and know how to win and know the whole process, know what it takes to get through a whole season,” Gray said.

Gray’s lifelong bond with the Reds also contributed to his decision. His father, Jesse, was a Reds fan growing up in Tennessee and tried out for their farm system but wasn’t chosen. His father usually wore a Reds cap and took Gray to his first major league game at Great American. He remembers trying the city’s version of chili — a Mediterranean-style meat sauce over spaghetti topped with cheese. “It was a thing,” Gray said. “I remember that — some crazy little chili concoction that was delicious.”

Gray made the 2015 All-Star Game in Cincinnati but didn’t pitch because he’d started the previous Sunday for Oakland. He started at Great American for the Athletics on June 10, 2016, and gave up five hits, two runs and no homers in 7 2/3 innings of a 2-1 loss.

Now he gets to pitch for the favorite team of his father, who died in a highway accident. “So I know he’s looking down with the biggest smile on his face right now,” Gray said.

Gray had agreed to a $7.5 million, one-year deal with the Yankees. The new contract adds a $500,000 signing bonus, annual salaries of $10 million from 2020-22, the option and $500,000 in annual performance bonuses for innings: $100,000 each for 150 innings and each additional 10 through 190.

His salaries from 2020 on, including the option price, would increase by $2 million for each Cy Young Award, $1 million for every second- or third-place finish, $750,000 for each fourth- or fifth-place finish, and $500,000 for each sixth-through-10th-place finish. They would go up by $2 million for each MVP Award, $1 million for every second-or-third-place finish and $750,000 for each fourth- or fifth-place finish, and by $200,000 for each All-Star selection. The option price also could escalate by $600,000 for innings in 2022: $100,000 for 150 and each additional 10 through 200.

Gray also can earn award bonuses and would get $1 million each time he is traded.

back to within two. Leatherman’s putback basket with 40 seconds to go followed by a pair of Phoebe Grote free throws down the stretch allowed the Hilltoppers to escape with the much-needed win. “That was as satisfying of a win as we have had this year,” Shawe coach Terry King said. “When Kate went out we could have just folded but I thought we did a good job of hanging in there. “I’m just happy for the win.” McAllister finished the game with 14 points to lead Shawe while Leatherman scored six and Phoebe Grote chipped in five. For King, seeing the rest of his team perform well without their leader was good to see. “They needed this confidence boost because that’s your team next year,” King said. “Kate is the only senior and all of these girls come back. It was good to see them play the way they did.” As nice as the win was for the team, all talk after the game was about Kate Grote, who ends her stellar high school career with 1,244 points, just 57 shy of Claire Higgins’ school record. While most players would have accepted their fate, Grote spent the last week trying to find a way to get back on the floor noting that giving up was “not the way I was raised.” “Never give up until they kick you off. That’s my motto,” Grote said with a smile. “I wanted (the record) bad. I was hoping to come out and just start shooting but that’s not the way it went. But I’m proud of my career, I really am. And I’m proud of these girls more than anything. Especially my cousin Phoebe Grote. That was a big three.” Shawe (5-16) wraps up the regular season at home on Thursday against Rising Sun on senior night. The Hilltoppers will then face the winner of West Washington and Edinburg in the semifinals of the Class A Sectional at Edinburg on Friday, Feb. 1.
